Robert Harper

Robert Harper works in a large travel agency in Scotland. He likes his job very much although he usually has a lot of work to do.

“The best thing about working here is that I can travel all over the world in my free time. And often I get good prices, too. Hotel staff are very friendly because they hope that I'll recommend their hotel to my customers. It is really true that you can sell something better if you have seen it yourself. You hear about all the interesting places and new hotels and resorts. As we are a very big company, we have partners around the globe. Sometimes we also travel to nice places during our work. Most people think this is wonderful but it can be stressful, too. Imagine being a nice holiday island and instead of relaxing on the beach you have to visit 10 hotels per day.

In my daily work at the office I like talking to our customers and trying to find the perfect holiday for them. We also get a lot of calls from business people who book flights or rental cars. Sometimes it is really difficult to find what they want and they often have to change their plans. I like working on the computer but one disadvantage of my job is all the paperwork I have to do.”
